NORTH CHARLESTON— The students of W. B. Goodwin Elementary painted a series of five window murals in honor of famous African-Americans for Black History Month. Five fifth grade art students applying to art school next year were chosen to paint African-Americans from the past and present time periods. The mural consisted of Martin Luther King, Jr. painted by Brandon Ortega, Rosa Parks painted by Quenterrah Simmons, Barack and Michelle Obama painted by Taylor Edwards, Ruby Bridges painted by Gerardo Coronado, and Michael Jackson painted by Jovanni Escolana. The Goodwin community was honored to have such talented young artists display their abilities in our school.
