at Columbia Museum of Art*

CHARLESTON—Thursday, October 22, West Ashley High School Photography II students, Olivia Lorimor, Amanda Nettles, Kazuki Otani and Nicole Price participated in From Behind the Lens, a student photography exhibit at the Columbia Museum of Art. This exhibit, featuring student photography, coincided with the opening of Ansel Adams: Masterworks.

Three distinct geographic areas, northern, central, and low country, are each represented by three South Carolina high schools. West Ashley High School presents the landscapes of the low country. The students' photography depicts local, frequently observed landscapes. From Behind the Lens runs through January 17, 2010.
