

Shmoop Letter to Parents

It takes a village. And Shmoop.

Let's face it, 'rents. If you don't help your kid become a millionaire, you won't have anyone to pay for your old age home. That's why we've put together loads of tools for you to help you guide your kids through the toughest part of their lives: school.

<https://schools.shmoop.com/parents>

Thanks to your school, your student now has access to Shmoop's premium resources for SAT, ACT, PSAT, Advanced Placement, and hundreds of other exams. And even more:

Get Started

1. Go to schools.shmoop.com.
2. Enter your Magic Word in the purple box. (WALRUS)
3. Choose your school.
4. Create an account or log in.

- Test Prep
- Online Courses
- Career Tests
- Essay Lab
- Videos
- Math and ELA Practice
- College Application Help
- College Majors
- College Profiles
- Financial Literacy
- And more. Lots more.

We may speak student, but we want you to be involved in your student's Shmoop success. Log in, take a few drills, feel embarrassed about how much you've forgotten since high school, and then explore the rest of the Shmoop world.

Schools.shmoop.com is accessible on any device that connects to the Internet, including iOS and Android tablets and smartphones. We do not use Flash in our test prep tools and services, and we develop with HTML5 as much as the standard is supported in each browser.