Charleston, S.C. – Academic Magnet High School congratulates rising 10th grader and aspiring pediatrician Molly George on her acceptance to Harvard University's Future Doctors Program this summer.

According to Harvard University, the 9-day Future Doctors program "aims to prepare students for a career in medicine by providing an overview of the MCAT process," and exploration of "genetic inheritance, hormones, immunology, organic chemistry" and select diseases.

For George, the program represents the opportunity to get a "broad overview of the medical world" and "learn more about the lifestyle of an MD to see if it is a fit."

When asked what advice she would provide students interested in pursuing similar programs, George recommended they "seek out every opportunity," adding "so many doors are opened by actively seeking them. Never let the fear of being rejected stop you from applying!"

Congratulations again to Molly on this remarkable opportunity. The Academic Magnet High School community looks forward to hearing what you learn this summer at Harvard University!
